"Perched on the precipice of her moment," Madi Diaz is a Berklee-graduate singer/songwriter who got her start in the late 2000s. She has released many EPs and albums, but has gained much of her more recent fame through her tours with Waxahatchee, Angel Olsen, and Harry Styles. She delivers delicate yet passionate ballads that are rooted in the throes of love, both with others and with the self.

The Snuts, a Scottish indie rock band formed in 2015, have played together since secondary school. They've drawn influence from indie rock icons such as The Libertines and Arctic Monkeys and made their debut playing festivals around the UK and US. Post-Covid, they've embarked on multiple international tours as The Kooks, Kings of Leon, and Louis Tomlinson.

Michael Nau is a Maryland-native, multi-instrumentalist who takes dreamy indie-folk-pop to the next level. He first embarked as a solo act in 2016, after shedding his prior projects, Page France and Cotton Jones. Through his lyrics, he manages to evoke a light and airy sense of calm, despite the complex, intermingling of different music origins, styles, and instruments.
